How can we eliminate the worst forms of child labor in cocoa-producing countries?

1. Put children’s well-being and cocoa-growing communities at the center

2. Take a holistic approach and tackle the root causes of the problem

3. Work together – industry, governments, civil society – and amplify each other’s actions
Addressing the root causes of child labor with a holistic, community-centric approach

- Improve farmers’ income
- Increase farm productivity

- Create additional income streams
- Provide access to finance

- Build communities’ capacity
- Empower women

- Good environmental practices and conservation of natural eco-systems
- Combat deforestation

- Empower communities to sensitize, monitor and remediate with a CLMRS
- Partner with national/regional authorities

Cocoa Life is built on a vision of empowered cocoa farmers in thriving communities as the foundation for a sustainable cocoa supply chain
